

PRESIDENT WILSON IS NOW BACK IN AMERICA AFTER EPOCH MAKING TRIP

GERMANS MUST GIVE UP RICHES

Weimar, July 8—via Berlin, July 9—The initial steps toward raising the great war indemnity imposed on Germany by the allies was taken here this afternoon when Dr. Matthias Erzberger, vice chancellor and minister of finance, introduced 10 new revenue bills designed to increase the income of the republic by 900 per cent. The measures provide for:

- Expropriation of large fortunes.
- Special taxation on all fortunes increased during the war.
- Taxation on the profits of real estate transactions.
- Exactions on amusements.
- Inheritance taxes.

A federal tax on the profits by German states from land used for military purposes during the war. Additional taxes on sugar.

Three bills for additional taxes on tobacco, matches and playing cards. The vice chancellor introduced the bills at the conclusion of a speech in which he outlined the financial program the new republic must adhere to if it hoped to fulfill its obligations and at the same time escape bankruptcy.

The vice chancellor urged all Germans to cease talking of revenge on Germany's enemies and to get to work.

"The word of the German republic must be honorable," he said. "We must work, else there will be no food. We must not agitate for revenge, but seek to show the justice of our case."

"I am firmly resolved to tread the path of hard economy. Beginning the first of October there will be no more items of expenditure without details. The war finance system will cease. There will be no more unproductive expenditures. It is necessary for the propertied classes to surrender their superfluous riches."

"The government does not intend to annul the war loans. We must maintain the interest upon them. An inheritance tax and the big levy on property will be the inaugural steps. The republic's income must be increased 900 per cent and that of the states and communes 100 per cent. Bankruptcy must not seize us."

The vice chancellor was loudly applauded when he concluded. The most revolutionary step in the government's financial program as announced by Dr. Erzberger was the flat statement that "it is necessary for the propertied classes to surrender their superfluous riches."

COMMANDER OF R-34 AND UNITED STATES NAVAL OFFICER PHOTOGRAPHED AFTER ARRIVAL AT MINEOLA.

Major Scott and Lieut-Commander Landsdowne.

Major G. H. Scott, Royal Air Force, commander of the British dirigible R-34, and Lieutenant-Commander Zachary Landsdowne, U. S. N., photographed at Roosevelt Field Mineola, L. I. shortly after the arrival of the big airship. Lieutenant-Commander Landsdowne made the trip on the R-34 as a special observer for the United States Navy.

HISTORIC PICTURE BROUGHT HERE BY BRITISH DIRIGIBLE R-34.

President Wilson signing Peace Treaty.

This exclusive photograph was brought to the United States on the British dirigible R-34, which landed at Mineola recently after its epoch-making flight across the Atlantic. It is the first picture to arrive here of the historic event staged at Versailles. When the photograph was made at Versailles it was speeded from Paris across the channel to London and then to East Fortune, England, where the giant R-34 was all ready to start its flight over the ocean. It shows the momentous scene in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles at the signing of the Peace Treaty. President Wilson is indicated by the white arrow affixing his signature to the document, which has just been brought to him. Near him are seated Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George and General Bliss.

MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT IS A MASTERPIECE

Washington, July 9.—The issues in the German peace treaty with its accompanying constitution for the proposed League of Nations were joined today. With President Wilson back in the White House the advocates of the treaty had leadership at last. The opening gun for the ratification will be fired tomorrow. President Wilson himself will tell the senate and as many members of the house as can be accommodated in the chamber just why, in his opinion, the treaty must be ratified.

The president's message and the complete official treaty went to the printer today. Both will be laid on the desks of the senators tomorrow immediately after the president ends his address.

The message, those in the president's confidence who have had opportunity to read it, say, is a masterpiece. In fact, some of the president's most enthusiastic advisors characterized it today as the "greatest of his state papers."

Throughout, the message is declared to be absolutely free from criticism of its author's opponents. It is designed, it was stated today, to lay the foundation for full and free discussion of the work of the American commission to negotiate peace.

The message is something more than 5,000 words in length. Starting off with an explanation of the difficulties that were encountered in reconciling the diverse interests represented in Paris, it explains that there was evidence at all times that the peoples of the world looked to the United States for guidance. The president makes it plain that the world has depended on America to assist it in "getting back to work."

Tribute of the highest sort is paid to the great work of the American army and navy. As in his speech in Carnegie Hall, New York, the president extols the valor and dignity of the American warriors who turned the tide of battle and stemmed the onward rush of the Great German military machine, making possible its complete shattering.

The president then takes up the treaty itself in detail. He declares in open, plain terms, that everywhere in the conference it was the consensus of opinion that only through the creation of a league of nations could a stable peace be established.

FADDISTS HURTING THE DENTAL PROFESSION

Cedar Point, O., July 9.—"Faddists and fanatics in the dentistry world are making the public distrust the profession and are doing incalculable harm to patients," declared Dr. H. Edmund Friessell, dean of the dental college of the University of Pittsburgh, in an address before the Psi Omega Dental fraternity in convention here.

Dr. Friessell accused the medical profession of trying to instruct the public in dentistry. "Dentistry should stand on its own legs and tell medicine to mind its own business," declared the speaker.

Four hundred dentists heard Major B. S. Rothwell of the Lake Side unit tell of the wonders wrought on oral and plastic surgery in France. The United States lead all nations in caring for soldiers' teeth.

TROUBLE FOLLOWS CLOSE ON HIS TRAIL

Cleveland, O., July 9.—Harry Holmes, indicted as one of the five robbers of the West Cleveland Bank was released late yesterday under $20,000 bond. No sooner was he free than he was arrested on a larceny charge in connection with the theft of an automobile. He put up $5,000 bail on this charge and was again free. As he was about to leave police headquarters a warrant charging robbery of property belonging to John Weber was served. He furnished $3,000 bond on this charge, finally gaining freedom under bond totalling $28,000.

Only a light breeze was blowing Roosevelt field today, the weather was fine and there was little likelihood of any trouble with the airship. For a few minutes last night the R-34 got out of hand when the contraction of hydrogen gas as the night wind grew cool caused her stern to drop earthward. Two of the crew who were standing watch all night aboard the airship, threw out water ballast and she righted herself. Throughout the night the R-34 continued to take on gas in preparation for tomorrow's journey.

STRIKE DEVELOPS INTO A RIOT AND TWO PERSONS ARE KILLED

Chicago, July 9.—Armed guards are patrolling the plant of the Corn Products Refining Company at Argo today where a strike of more than 1,000 employees late yesterday flared into a riot in which two persons were killed and more than a score were injured. Fighting has ceased after a battle in which more than 150 shots were fired but the situation today is considered extremely grave.

Special deputies have been sworn in to reinforce the police and volunteer guards at the plant and 100 guards are on duty today. Plans have been made to rush additional guards to the plant should there be a further outbreak. The possibility of calling out state troops also has been considered in the event of additional trouble.

John Wutack and Mike Marcinik, strikers, are the two who were killed. Six persons are known to be severely wounded and some of them may die. More than a dozen received injuries which necessitated medical attention. The strikers suffered all the casualties, none of the guards or officers being injured.

POLICE NAB SUSPECT IN BANK ROBBERY

Cleveland, O., July 9.—Police went to Elyria today to bring back a suspect in the West Cleveland Banking bank robbery arrested there last night. According to the police the latest suspect was the one Cleveland member of the gang. The police say his identity was established through bertillon photographs.

LAWYERS OPPOSE THE NON-PARTISAN JUDICIAL BALLOT

Cedar Point, O., July 9.—There was every reason to believe today according to leading delegates, that the Ohio State Bar Association in annual convention here will pass before adjournment, resolutions urging repeal of the non-partisan judicial ballot law in Ohio.

At the opening session President Ensign N. Brown of Youngstown, bitterly attacked the law and Charles E. Blanchard, of Columbus, secretary, today said:

"In order to make themselves known, judges nominated for public office must spend in their campaigns far more money than they can afford. If their names were under a party designation, this unjust situation could be avoided. Only a man of means can afford to run for a judicial position these days."

Four hundred lawyers are attending the convention. The big address will be made by Wendell Phillips Stafford, chief justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and a noted authority on international law, on "May the United States join the proposed League of Nations by exercise of its treaty making power?"

FIGHT PICTURES ARE BARRED IN THIS STATE

Columbus, O., July 9.—For the second time the Ohio Board of movie censors has rejected the Willard-Dempsey fight pictures. Charles G. Williams member of the board, who was not present at the showing, voted to allow the exhibition, giving as his reason the fact that the fight was allowed in the state and that the pictures were only a reproduction of what took place.

The owners of the pictures say today that they will cut out certain objectionable features and resubmit the film to the censor board.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE GOES TO HIS OFFICE EARLY WEDNESDAY MORNING

Washington, July 9.—Although it was long after midnight when his welcome home ended, President Wilson was working at his overloaded desk in the White House soon after 8 o'clock today. He had disposed of a large amount of personal and official correspondence even before any of the force of the executive offices put in an appearance. It was expected that the president would devote practically all of the day clearing up urgent matters calling for his personal attention.

The president's greeting when he arrived at the national capital was the most spontaneous ever accorded him. Although his train arrived two hours after schedule, the crowd not only waited but was augmented until, when he arrived, there were 100,000 persons crowded in the concourse of the Union station and the station proper also was jammed. Waving flags and cheering they surged forward in a mighty demonstration and were held back only by the steel cables that had been stretched along the concourse.

The route to the White House, despite the lateness of the hour, was lined and in the vicinity of the White House was another crowd numbering at least 15,000. From the station to the White House the president was forced to acknowledge an almost uninterrupted demonstration.

"Home at last," was his remark as he alighted at the executive mansion, pausing for a moment to look at the surroundings, greatly transformed since the first week in March when he left on his second trip overseas.

By John Edwin Nevin.

Washington, July 9.—When President Wilson walked down the gang plank of the United States naval transport George Washington Tuesday afternoon, he ended a trip marked by more precedent breaking than ever before in the history of the nation which has characterized this administration of its chief executive.

The president had not alone visited Europe, but he personally participated in the drafting of the treaty of peace which had ended the war with Germany. That document he brought back with him and will present it to the senate within 48 hours.

Whether the document is a satisfactory one to the congress, to the senate, which must approve it by two-thirds vote of its membership and to the people of the United States generally is something yet to be determined. But it can be stated officially that the president himself is satisfied. He does not regard the treaty as a perfect document. But he does believe that it marks a long step forward and that it will, when its contents are explained and analyzed, receive the approval of the people.

The president, it is known, believes that the treaty follows even more closely than he had anticipated when the diverse interests of the nations interested are considered, the 14 points of peace outlined by him in his original peace message to congress. Persons close to the president today declared that the treaty accomplished the following facts:

First, compels Germany to pay for the acts of her folly in initiating the war to the utmost of her ability, while at the same time preventing her from bankruptcy that inevitably would have followed had she been forced as Great Britain and France originally intended, to assume the entire cost of the war.

Second, furnishes a medium to avoid future wars through the creation of the much controverted League of Nations.

Third, restores to France Alsace-Lorraine, wrested from her by the Prussian empire in 1871.

Fourth, liberates peoples who "had heretofore only dreamed of liberty" in the persons of the new republics created in Europe, including Poland, Czechoslovakia, etc.

In addition to the treaty with Germany, the president will submit to the senate a treaty arranged between France, Great Britain and the United States, whereby the two latter powers are to prepare should Germany again threaten France to come to the latter's assistance without waiting for action by the League of Nations. The treaty was agreed to as the result of the insistence of Premier Clemenceau of France, but there is grave doubt expressed in many American quarters whether it will appeal to the people of the United States. There is a general feeling among the Americans in Europe that this undertaking will never be ratified by congress.

FRENCH TROOPS CLASH AT FIUME WITH ITALIANS

Geneva, July 9.—Twenty-one French officers and men have been killed and about as many wounded in the clashes between French and Italian troops at Fiume. Reports received here say that the trouble is continuing.

STILL CHECKING UP THE FIGHT RECEIPTS

Toledo, Ohio, July 9.—Accountants and representatives of the internal revenue department were still checking away today at the gate receipts of the big Willard-Dempsey go on alarm today.

July 4, but expected to complete their work by evening. They said, however, that their official figures would not differ materially from the unofficial figures given out by Tex Rickard before he departed for the east. The promoter said approximately 21,000 people had paid $452,000 to see the fight.

Rickard said the $10 sections proved a huge disappointment but 5,000 of the 40,000 capacity being sold. The high priced tickets, however were all disposed of.

$75,000 DAMAGE DONE

Cleveland, O., July 9.—An immense amount of brass fixtures was destroyed today when fire swept the plant of the Crescent Brass Manufacturing company here, causing damage estimated at $75,000.

Edward Lander, a fireman, was badly crushed and six other employees of the fire department injured when hook and ladder truck No. 12 overturned at West 58th street and Deering avenue in responding to an alarm today.

This entirely new statement is one of the most striking tributes ever paid to a medicine. Observe that Nerv-Worth did for him what several doctors found it impossible to do: Dar Sirs—I feel it my duty to speak a word in behalf of your wonderful medicine (Nerv-Worth). I have suffered with a bad stomach trouble for two or three years. Could eat nothing without suffering with palpitation of the heart smothering—and nerves in a terrible shape. I had tried five or six different doctors, but could get no relief whatever. Seeing testimonials for Nerv-Worth in a paper I decided to try a bottle. I felt like a new man after the first bottle. Ray Peterson, who moved with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Peterson to Huntington, W. Va., last March, has returned for a few weeks' visit with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Peterson and other relatives.

Councilman Michael Mullen stopped off at his summer home here while enroute from Toledo to Cincinnati. Mr. Mullen attended the Willard-Dempsey fight on the 4th.

I. F. Weaver, the veteran thresherman, accompanied by his two sons, John and Jesse Weaver, started to threshing the "golden grain" last week. Mr. Weaver holds the undisputed record of the "oldest thresherman in Ohio." This season will make his 53rd year in the business.

Why don't some enterprising individual or company purchasing the M. P. meeting house and convert it into a business room of some sort? It is more than probable that the house of worship will not be used any longer for religious purposes.

The new firm of Webb and Guy is kept on the jump taking care of their contracts of painting and paperhanging. Local thermometers registered from 94 to 100 in the shade on the 4th.

"Still and Sunday-like," doesn't apply to the south-west corner of Maple and West streets when you try to take a nap.

Postmistress Ethel Turner her three sons, Harry, Wade and John, and Mrs. Grace Cunningham visited Mr. and Mrs. William Cunningham of near Greenville, Saturday and Sunday.

Charles Kemp fell and hurt himself in the chest while working on the Schwartz building one day last week. J. T. Finley, his son Maurice, and Lawrence Anthony, spent the 4th in Dayton.

A poppet patch grown up in weeds will not supply your winter's needs. Visitors in town on Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Kilean, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dinwiddie and child, Clarence Lamsinger, Charles Roberts and family, Timothy Brelsford Mr. and Mrs. Bert Watson, Addison and Etta Hebble, Marie Multhup, Cal Young and Mr. and Mrs. McDonald.

Robert Butler an expert plasterer of Dayton, is plastering C. F. Schwartz's store rooms. Mr. Butler is a son of Robert Butler, whose name was so prominently linked with the discovery of the Magnetic Springs at this place over 27 years ago. The father himself was a plasterer, and it was largely through his observations that the discovery was made. The five sons of the elder Mr. Butler chose the occupation of their father and became expert in their line of work.

SPRINGFIELD WHITE SOX NOSES OUT IN TEN INNING GAME

The Springfield White Sox, who split fifty-fifty in a two game series with the Xenia Reserves here this season, were nosed out in the tenth frame of an extra inning contest with the Wilmington Clintons Sunday, the score being 7-6.

"Red" Toews, who handled the mask and pad for the locals during the early part of the season, was behind the batters for the Home City crowd, greatly strengthening the line-up, as "Red" is no piker at the backstopping position.

The Wilmington outfit has been playing good ball since it was gotten under way some few Sundays ago. Hieronimus, who has a permanent lease on the pitcher's mound around the Quaker City, is again in the box this season, and although he was touched up pretty lively by the visitors Sunday, his teammates were not slow with the dash themselves, and they kept Duffy's gardeners "on the bit" most of the time.

With the Clintons now well organized and offering a good brand of the national pastime, it would be entirely congenial with the local fans if Manager Foley should arrange a game between the Cincinnati avenue performers and the Clinton county athletes.

Boss Foley has already booked the Washington Athletics, another old local rival, who is scheduled to do battle at the local yard soon and it would do the fans good if the old baseball triangle of Washington, Wilmington and Xenia could be revived.

Next Sunday Foley's followers will carry on against the Springfield All Stars, an outfit which comprises the best baseball material in the Home City, being made up of the cream of the Athletics and the White Sox. A return of a Springfield club will be welcomed if Erwin of the White Sox, can be squeezed out of the line up.

FIRE DEPARTMENT NOT CALLED OUT FOR OVER MONTH

It used to be in the good old days that a long dry spell was generally followed by a fire or several fires.

But now history is belying its previous records, for while everything has been as dry as a chip since the saloons went out on May 26, there has not been a fire since a month ago last Wednesday, which shows that there is something wrong with this kind of dry spell.

Up at the Fire department house, the daily checker tournament is enjoying uninterrupted existence. The fire laddies who were wont to stop just as they were about to move into the king row, and make a dive for the chugging fire truck or to buckle up harness, have not suffered a break in the harmony of their existence for well over a month, according to their own statements.

"I have known it to go six weeks without a call," said Driver Mahanna, of the motor truck Wednesday. If the present quiet spell holds forth a little while longer it bids fair to smash a record for continued absence of firecalls.

This five weeks fire famine was broken at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning when the Fire Department answered a call to the home of Henry Schwab on Center street.

Fire, supposed to have originated from a defective flue, destroyed the summer kitchen at the Schwab home. Firemen fought the blaze with both water and chemicals and saved the house from being consumed in the conflagration. The fire was the first in five weeks, and came just at a time when firemen were congratulating themselves on the lack of calls recently.

"JEWELRY" OF MASAI WOMEN

Telegraph Wire Considered Choice Personal Adornment by Females of British East African Tribe.

Of all Africa's many tribes, none is more distinctive than the Masai, that warlike race of British East Africa, whose women are regarded as the best looking of all negroes. They are slender, well formed, and lack the abnormal hips so characteristic of many other natives. Pride in personal adornment is shown by ornaments of a remarkable nature, telegraph wire being coiled about their arms and limbs in spiral fashion.

So awkward is this remarkable jewelry that the wearer cannot walk properly, nor can she sit down nor rise like other human beings. Round her arms she has wire coiled both above and below her elbows, while still more wire is coiled round her neck horizontally, till the head seems to sit on an inverted iron salver. Put on at an early age, these ornaments must remain unless they are sawed off. As a result of this compression the limbs remain like mere stumps, the wire frequently becoming embedded into the flesh. Besides this iron wire, often weighing 30 pounds or more, great quantities of beads and iron chains are hung in various ways round the neck.

During the period of engagement the girl wears round her head a band covered with cowries from which hang a number of strings forming a bridal veil. For the first time she dons real clothes, consisting of an apron in front, suspended from the shoulders behind. The hairs of the eyebrow are pulled out to further enhance her beauty.

DO YOU THINK IN PICTURES?

According to Men Who Have Studied the Subject, Most of Us Unconsciously Have That Habit.

A writer says: "A good many men and a larger number of women and children think in pictures without knowing it. If some one speaks of a tree, an oak or an elm, or a pine—do you see a composite tree of your own design, or a particular tree you knew, perhaps, in childhood? Do you see it bare or in full leaf? If you are one of those who think in pictures, you will find that you always see the same picture for the same words." Prof. Francis Galton, F. R. S., is the expounder of this belief, and after all, is it not merely a return to the very origin of our written language, the hieroglyphs of Egypt? In that primitive time it is possible that a word brought so clearly to mind a mental vision of an object or an action that it could easily be summarized into an ideograph. In our more complex life we have, of course, lost sight of the facts and no longer realize that the word "tree" means to us a well-defined object probably fixed in the brain by one of the minute lessons—or its electric—which science tells us are the sources of memory.

We unconsciously assemble these various memories and unconsciously form of them pictures which, if we are suddenly brought to ourselves, we might still retain on the mind's retina for a time, just as we retain dream images vividly on suddenly awakening.

Early Protest Against Tipping.

The word "tip" is said to be derived from the initial letters of the phrase "To Insure Promptness," but as "tips" usually follow, instead of preceding, service, they insure nothing, and as a consequence anti-tipping crusades are constantly being threatened. But protests against tipping are by no means of modern growth. George I. complained about it when he first came to the throne—and England. "This is a strange country," he declared. "The first morning after my arrival at St. James' I looked out of the window and saw a park with walks and a canal, which I was told were mine. The next day Lord Chetwynd, the ranger of my park, sent me a fine brace of carp out of my canal, and I was told I must give 5 guineas to Lord Chetwynd's servant for bringing me my own carp out of my own canal in my own park."

Putting It Plainly.

Among the many good stories contained in the private papers of Admiral Sir William Hotham, is one about Gen. O'Hara, who, as governor of Gibraltar, discovered that an officer who had lately joined had come on parade with an umbrella.

The wind that day was easterly, and the general perhaps was unduly affected by this circumstance, but in very unmeasured terms he ordered the delinquent to throw away the offending implement; and after adding other comments, concluded thus: "And pray, sir, in future understand that you are not to appear upon this parade with an umbrella—no, not if it is raining pikes with the sharp points downwards!"—London Tit-Bits.

Frost Forests.

One beautiful use his window had, one glorious use, one enchantment. In the depth of winter sometimes of mornings when he got out of bed and went to open the shutter, on the windowpanes would be a forest of glittering trees. The first time he beheld such a forest, he stood before it spellbound; wondering whether there were silvery birds singing far off amid the silvery boughs, and what wild creatures crouched in the tall, stiff frost-grass. From the ice-forests on the windowpanes his thoughts always returned to the green summer forest on the distant horizon.—James Lane Allen, in "The Kentucky Warbler."

CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS

(OHIO)

Remember this great Centenary Celebration closes its gates on SUNDAY, JULY 13th.

Described by William C. Freeman, Associated with Paul Block, Inc., New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston.

Thousands of requests have come to the Committee in Charge to extend for another week or two the Centenary Celebration.

BUT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DO SO.

THE CLOSING DATE—SUNDAY, JULY 13—MUST STAND AS ORIGINALLY PLANNED.

And this is why this greatest Exposition of modern times must close its doors on Sunday, July 13: Its success—and it is a remarkable success, as all concede—has depended on the self-sacrificing efforts of many hundreds of volunteer workers who cannot possibly remain at their posts longer than Sunday, July 13th.

A few might remain, without serious detriment to their personal affairs, but a BIG ENGINE, such as that which has furnished the power for this Centenary Celebration Columbus, cannot run smoothly with a great many of the parts inactive.

EVERY ONE of the splendidly zealous and intelligent group of volunteer workers is necessary to the smooth running of the Exposition—

Therefore, with so many hundreds unable to continue, the BIG ENGINE of which they are essential parts, must shut off its power Sunday, July 13th.

AND SO, WITH MANY REGRETS, AND WITH DEEP APPRECIATION OF THE MAGNIFICENT TRIBUTE PAID THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION BY THE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE THAT HAVE SEEN IT, THE COMMITTEE BOWS TO THE INEVITABLE AND MUST CLOSE THE GATES SUNDAY, JULY 13.

It is a significant thing that on several of the days since the Centenary Celebration started—Friday June 20th—the attendance has been larger than was the attendance at that much-heralded prize fight which took place at Toledo last Friday.

WHICH SHOWS THAT—the millions—the heart and conscience and real manhood and womanhood of the country—stand back of and loyally support the big things done in the world to make it better—such big things, for instance, as find expression in the more than 16,000 individual exhibits displayed at the Centenary Celebration, State Fair Grounds, Columbus.

Each one of these exhibits REPRESENTS A TRIUMPH for the grand work done by thousands of self-sacrificing men and women in teaching their brothers and sisters in all parts of the world how to benefit themselves by adopting Christian standards of living and applying themselves to helpful, constructive industry.

Surely you will wish to see these wonderful exhibits at the Centenary Celebration before the gates are closed Sunday evening, July 13th. Furthermore, I am sure you will want to feel the same thrill that so many visitors have told me they have felt. They tell me—

"THIS CENTENARY CELEBRATION HAS STIRRED IN US THE FINEST KIND OF EMOTIONS. AND YET WE HAVE HAD A JOLLY GOOD TIME IN SEEING THE WONDERFUL THINGS DISPLAYED AND HEARING SO MUCH INSPIRING MUSIC."

I think an Exposition that has the power to stir in us our best emotions while at the same time delightfully entertaining us, is about the highest type of Exposition, don't you think so?

Remember, the Centenary Celebration continues only four more days after today. Don't let it close its gates without your seeing it—no matter how far you have to travel or how much time it takes, or how much money it costs.

The Exposition itself charges an entrance fee of only 50 cents for all day long, and an extra fee of 50 cents if you wish to see the great pageant in the Coliseum.

NEW LITERARY CLUB OR- GANIZED AT SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOME.

For forty years that indefatigable promoter, "Good Intention," had been making a number of the good matrons and teachers at our Soldiers' Orphans' Home anxious for the promotion of a literary society among themselves. But you know the fiction about many good intentions and purposes, that they lie buried in the churchyard. Good intentions are very mortal and perishable things, and so it proved for years with the hope for a Literary Society among the Home ladies.

But at last, in this good year 1919, the long hoped for Literary Society has not only been born, but comes forth a stalwart with teeth, needing no nursing bottle. In fact it has all the ear-marks of success right from its start.

Some of these good ladies of the Home have laid on this editor's desk the beautiful brochure calendar for the year 1919-1920 of their new "Searchlight Club," just organized. We compliment them for the fact that from its first page to the last this calendar is perfection in the matter of contents and arrangement. In every phase the calendar is ala-mode up to snuff. Whoever superintended its construction did so with ability and taste.

The ladies who have conceived and organized the "Searchlight Club" are entitled to much credit for what they have accomplished. It has taken work, but they have their reward in the knowledge that the Club will be a splendid adjunct to the work of the Home. We do not know of any other new departure for which we could say a kinder word.

The calendar contains the dates of monthly meetings from September 9, 1919, to August 10, 1920, naming participants. There are 31 members named. The officers for the first year are: President, Mrs. Martha Cavanaugh; Vice President, Miss Techla Hess; Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Lewis; Treasurer, Miss Harriet Tedrick.

The lyric headings to each month are very beautiful and appropriate.

Introductory to the calendar is a "Collect for Club Women" so full of high ideals that we can close this notice in no better way than to give it as follows:

A COLLECT FOR CLUB WOMEN.

"Keep us, O God, from pettiness, let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

Let us be done with fault finding and leave off self seeking.

May we put away pretense and meet each other face to face without self pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things: make us grow calm, serene and gentle. Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences that in the big things of life we are as one.

And may we strive to teach and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all.

And let us not forget to be kind.

PUNISH THE CULPRITS.

Civilization has now settled accounts with the German nation. It remains to settle with the individual criminals most responsible for the great calamity.

The treaty signed by Germany gives the Allies a legal right to claim the persons of the former Kaiser and those who share with him the guilt of starting the war and waging it in so barbarous a fashion. The claim should be pressed at once. Acquiescence on Germany's part will be a test of good faith, showing whether the Germans intend to abide by the treaty they have signed. If they refuse to yield the guilty men, in spite of their pledge, the Allies should proceed to take them.

The moral effect will be all the greater if Wilhelm and his brutal satellites are summoned to the judgment bar while the war and its fruits are still fresh in men's minds. Their trial will be the climax of the impressive drama of German retribution. It will fix clearly in the consciousness of all the world the facts of the war and the lessons learned from it. And if the prisoners are delivered over to a fitting punishment, it will be a lesson forever to rulers, statesmen, generals and admirals.

The German nation is learning that a people cannot sin without paying in full. It remains for the Germans to learn that men "clothed with a little brief authority" must likewise suffer punishment for crimes committed in the name of the nation—that a state is not superior to the laws of God and men, and that its representatives may be called to account for public acts as for private acts.

The war would have been won in vain if the German people, who are now known to have been equally guilty with their rulers, had not been made to suffer for a generation, not in vengeance but in partial recompense and in the working out of their own salvation. It will have been won in vain if one jot of possible and deserved punishment fails to fall upon the heads of the Prussians who have bathed the world in blood and brought mourning and poverty to many hundred millions of unoffending people.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS.

ROSE DOUBTS SANDRA'S LOVE FOR EVERETT.

CHAPTER VIII.

I wish I could describe understandingly the emotions I felt in those weeks preceding my wedding. One day I was all eagerness to try that new life that was to be mine, the next all fear, and unwillingness. I tried to think of Everett as all a lover should be, as my idea of what one should be (had been) before I met him. But I often felt depressed, gray and overcast like some of the days just passed. The sweet urge of spring was gone; that time when I felt the buoyancy of youth, and I sometimes felt the tears beneath my lids, as I thought of the leaves and buds having lived their short lives and fallen, and wished-like mother that Everett had been content to wait until spring had come again.

I never had liked the fall of the year. In a way it always saddened me. It seemed to me that when the wind sighed in the tree tops, or when it whistled mournfully through the shrubs, that it was moaning with regret because of the coming death of all about. But never had I given voice to this feeling, I feared no one would understand.

And much of the time I was so excited over my pretty clothes, my gifts, the linen shower the girls gave for me, that I had not time for sad thoughts, or to worry about the future.

Sometimes I wondered in a vague sort of way just WHY Everett Graham had asked me to marry him. How he had come to look at me at all in the light of a wife. But like others I had heard that "love goes where it is sent," and his was probably sent to me. When I said so to Rose, she replied in a real sharp way:

"I wish it had been sent to some one else."

Rose couldn't be reconciled to me marrying Everett. Not that she disliked him, she said often:

"He is a charming man, Sandra. But you can't be happy just because a man has nice manners, and knows how to wear his clothes. A girl has got to have something besides that. I am no older than you are, Sandra, but I'd be frightened to death to marry a man unless I just felt I couldn't live another minute without him. You don't love Mr. Graham like that, do you?"

"No—I guess—I could—live—without him." I said slowly trying to analyze my feelings as I answered. "But Rose, I have read stories where people didn't care so terribly much, and then love came in a blinding flash—those are just the very words 'a blinding flash.' Perhaps that is the way it will come to me, if I don't love Everett enough now."

"Blinding flash, nothing. Maybe you DO love him all you can, Sandra. Maybe you aren't the kind that cares very much about love." Rose was sentimental, yet of the two I was far more alive to all that was emotional than she was.

I made up my mind that just as soon as we were married I should ask Everett about a lot of things. I wouldn't dare before, of course. But he must first of all tell me all about his first wife, and tell me he loved me far better than ever he had loved her. That was the most important thing of all then he must tell me all about his women friends, those he had called upon since he had been a widower, and if he had been in love with any of them, and a dozen other things I wanted desperately to know. Then I would write Rose and tell her how mistaken she had been, and how foolish she

been, and show her how foolish she was to think Everett was too old to make me happy.

My faith that all his answers would set me at ease shows the little knowledge of what the replies to such questions as I meant to ask might mean to me—if they were honestly answered.

There was one thing about me I was SURE Everett liked, that was my name. He had told me so often, and everything he sent me was marked simply, "Sandra." No initials or monograms. He had told me that an unusual name always attracted him. Mine surely was unusual, so of course he was pleased with it.

Had I known that even the liking he had for unusual names was to be a distressing factor in my life, I should not have been so proud that mother had called me Sandra.

Tomorrow—Sandra's Wedding Eve.

Making Friends.

If one would have friends she must prove a friend. We cannot play a grouchy part and favorably impress others around us. Whatever Fate has sent us or denied us in the way of good looks doesn't matter. If we would be happy and help some one to feel likewise, we must put self in the background occasionally and show to that "some one" that we want to be her friend. — New York Evening Telegram.

GOODIN TWINS MAY BECOME REAL "BIG TIME" SINGERS

"Shine!"

The sound seems to emanate from a high column composed of cartons of "Honest Scrap" and "Prince Albert" which was just then moving forward on short legs and with unseen power from the rear door of the Rafus Mullen barber shop.

At the tobacco counter in the front of the shop, the pile of tobacco cartons halted in its forward movement, and then settled to the tiled floor, the hidden object of its progress and undoubtedly the owner of the voice, appearing with a broad grin from behind it.

Goodin, for it was indeed he, rid himself of a pale whistle as he moped his forehead and made for the marble topped shining stand which is his royal throne. Those who could distinguish by the depth of his dimples knew him to be Raymond Goodin, brother of Ralph Goodin, although the uninitiated could not tell the two apart. For the Goodin brothers, colored lads, are as like as two shoe buttons and as inseparable as the famous Siamese twins. Ralph, however, polishes automobiles instead of shoes and plies his trade at the Xenia Garage Company, where he can be found any time of day except meal time.

No twins ever looked more alike than the Goodin brothers, despite the fact that Raymond, by his own confession is fifteen minutes older than his brother. But the fact that the one is mirrored in the other or that Rufe Mullen doesn't know whether its Ralph or Raymond that is working for him, is not the bright feature of the Goodin twins, which seems destined to make them famous some day.

For the twins can sing. No more melodious notes were ever given in the throat of a Noble Sissle than find themselves floating from these musical dittos. Anything from sacred music to jazz is in their line, although it must be said that their interpretation of the latter form of musical entertainment leaves nothing to be longed for.

The silver tones from these two lads can be heard rising in harmony in a barber shop tenor or a garage baritone anytime of the sun-up period. Raymond, who beats a tattoo on your kickers at the barber shop is a tenor in every sense of the word, with a saxophone sob in his larynx that will knock you off your feet. Ralph is a baritone by nature or a base by request and his voice is attuned to harmonize with his brother.

Without the necessity of spreading any salve, it is believed by many, that these two lads could rattle the chandeliers in a real good singing act in the big time. Just twenty years old, they are evidently fearful of the big world and the bright footlights, and only long for a chance in a local theater. Friends vouch for the assertion that they could make good.

Noble Sissle, who sang for a month in the Bijou picture theater several years ago, is now one of the most popular colored singers on the staff of the Pathe Phonograph company and his records can be bought at any of the dealers.

The prophets have it that there is a great future in store for the Goodin brothers and maybe they will be "listening to their masters' voice" some day.

Right now barbershop harmony has been raised to a higher quality level by their presence here anyway.

What He Wanted.

Bobby had been given three cents to spend as he and his younger brother saw fit. Having heard much garden talk, and being attracted by a display of garden seeds, he came home with three packages of vegetable seeds, eager to get them planted at once. Hearing something about the proposed planting of some flower seeds, he insisted on planting his, saying to his mother as a final argument: "Mother, we don't want flower seeds; we want eating seeds."

Deep Diving.

The greatest depth ever reached by a diver is said to be 204 feet. The greatest depth at which useful work has been done is 182 feet. Sponge and pearl divers, working without armor, frequently descend to depths of about 150 feet.

The "Harmony Germ"

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1915, by Western Newspaper Union.)

The young lawyer, Paul Drury, was amazed as he saw old Dr. Eben Marston take the arm of Ben Adams, the confirmed inebriate of the town, and lead him into the nearest bar room.

Coming out of the place the retired physician observed Nat Gookins, a lad of eleven, puffing away at a cigarette, sheltered by an ash box in an alley. Dr. Marston blandly advanced toward the callow youth, who dropped the cigarette with a sheepish grin, and deliberately handed him a full grown cigar.

Paul was not only astounded, but curious. Was the aged physician, whose morals and habits were of the highest order, taking leave of his senses? He kept closely on his trail. The doctor was halted by Andrew Reed, a shivering, nerve-racked dope fiend. He made a pathetic appeal to the doctor. The latter conversed with him earnestly. Then he took out his medicine case and handed the sufferer a small phial.

"Well! what in the world does all this mean?" marveled Paul.

If he had seen the aged physician before he left home carefully prepare several small capsules, one of which he had inserted in a slit in the cigar, and two others, which he had dropped in turn into the phial he had given Andrew Reed and into the stimulant he had bought for Ben Adams, he would have been still further mystified. He and Dr. Marston were close friends and later in the day he dropped into his office.

"Doctor," he said, "I am no spy, but I saw you do some strange things today."

"Yes? I observed that you were watching me," nodded the doctor imperturbably.

"You did? Then you can fancy how I was puzzled and—yes, actually shocked. What were you up to, anyhow? Helping that poor set go further down the ladder? Encouraging that lad to smoke? Keeping up the misery of that poor wreck, Reed?"

"Not at all," responded Dr. Marston quite casually. "I am intent on curing them."

"Curing them?"

"Saving them, I should have said. Drury, you are a friend I can trust and I am going to impart to you something absolutely confidential. Those three subjects you saw me operate on today are experiments for my harmony germ system."

"Harmony germ?" repeated Paul vaguely. "And what may that be?"

"Listen—while I was on my trip around the world, at a choice little island in the southern Pacific I discovered an earthly paradise. Its inhabitants were mild, friendly people, all kindness and geniality. Its fruits and flowers were exquisite. The people ate no meat. Even the birds and animals of that select spot subsisted entirely on fruits, vegetables and grain. I studied it all out. I made a great discovery. I located the harmony germ—that is, a substance pervading all the flora and fauna of that lovely ocean-bound Eden, which seemed to make everything in nature harmonious. It may not be precisely a germ, but it is vitally a substance which puts good where there has been bad. I have determined to experiment with it. You have seen three subjects operated on. Wait a month and then decide if there is any basis to my erratic idea."

If Paul had known the truth he would have learned that Adams had fallen and broken a limb the very day Dr. Marston had administered his harmony germ. One lesson had been a warning to him and he had reformed. Likewise, Ned was smoking the doctor's cigar in the woodshed when his father called him. He had thrown the lighted weed among some shavings. The shed burned down. Ned was scared into repentance and became a better boy.

Now all this set Paul thinking seriously. There was that upon his mind which impelled him to seek Dr. Marston one day.

"Doctor," he said, "it's a wonder what that harmony germ has done for your subjects. Maybe you can help me."

"How is that, Drury?" propounded Dr. Marston.

"Well, I have been courting Edna Bell for nearly a year. I know that she likes me, but whenever I try to talk of marrying she puts me off. Give me some of your harmony germ, I'll mix it in with a box of candy and await results."

"All right," acquiesced Dr. Marston accommodatingly.

A month to a day after that Paul sat beside the fair Edna, a being possessed of joy incredible, for she was his promised bride.

"Paul," she said, "it was that box of candy that urged me to accept you."

"Ha!" whispered Paul to himself, "the harmony germ!"

"I always loved you, but wanted time to decide surely as to the future. I decided that candy with Mabel Hurst. While we were dispatching it she made the remark that she was going to set her cap for you. The thought of losing you was something terrible, so—"

"The harmony germ did it!" persisted Dr. Marston later exultingly, despite Paul's argument to the contrary.

THAT DEAR LITTLE OLD TRUNDLE BED

(BY R. A. HIGGINS)

They sing of borrowed pelouses and other means of fun, while I uphold my mattress, for joy when work is done. Of all the things amusing, when all is done and said, there's not a thing that can beat, that old four poster bed. No matter what the time is, at which you reach the hay, you'll sure be glad you hit it in the middle of the day. We are a devilish race and burn the midnight oil, and repent upon the morrow, while we attempt to toil. Each day brings forth a promise, to go to bed real soon, and each succeeding night sees neglect of this our boon. And thus through all of this life, we reckon up too late, and wrangle on our folly and blame it all on fate. We forget all the pleasures, that do this life infest, and rule the art of living, a failure at its best. But while we have this grinch, let's cogitate for once, and in our little trundle, our tired form ensconce.

For a pain around the heart after eating

TAKE PEPSINCO

Sometimes in front just under the heart, sometimes around under the left side, under the ribs behind the heart it's a sharp or acute pain, sometimes a dull heavy pain leaving a soreness, its gas on the inside generated through gaseous foods or because of systematic inability to properly assimilate the food this gas soon collecting, forms a lump that causes the pain. This is only one of a dozen different indications of indigestion which PEPSINCO immediately relieves. Keep PEPSINCO handy and take it the next time.

Ask your druggist—he sells and recommends Pepsinco.

"Does a woman precede a man when going into a theater or cafe?" asked James.

"The woman always precedes the man unless it is necessary for the man to find a place for her or show her the way. When there is an usher to conduct people to their seats, the woman follows him immediately and the man walks behind her," replied his father.

MYSTERIOUS MADEMOISELLE M. CONCEDED SPORTIEST DRESSED WOMAN IN PARIS.

Mysterious Mlle. M.

Fashionable women of Paris are all a-flutter over the sport costumes being worn by a mysterious mademoiselle who is a daily visitor to the famous Longchamps racecourse. Mademoiselle M., as she is generally known is conceded to be the most sportily-dressed woman in Paris, and therefore in France. She is shown here wearing a stylish walking suit of a rather masculine cut. Her bonnet is fastened much on the style of a jockey cap. The big initial M., embroidered on her handbags, are the means of her identification.

CANDIDATES FOR CITY COMMISSION TO BE CONSIDERED

A meeting of the Citizens Committee of One Hundred will be held Thursday evening at 8:30 p. m., at the rooms of the Business Men's Association to consider the question of candidates for the City Commission. Two commissioners are to be elected this fall and the time for filing petitions expires next Saturday, so action must be taken at once if at all.

During the next two years some very important matters will come up before the Commission and all friends of the new form of city government will need to continue their active interest.

The call is being sent out on postal cards to those who joined the committee and paid their dues but the object of the meeting is the welfare of Xenia and anyone who is interested in having a well governed city is invited to be present.

To those who have forgotten it may be well to explain how the Citizens Committee was formed. It is not a hand picked affair, but is composed of men who responded to the call for a general meeting when the new form of government was first considered. Every person in the city was invited and those who paid $2 dues to defray expenses of the committee are on record as committee members. Every citizen is welcome to become a member of the committee and every one interested in the welfare of the city is invited to the meeting Thursday evening.

Home authorities had investigated the Yerian home before the girl was permitted to go there to spend her vacation, and a favorable report had been given to them.

Cause of Teeth Stains and Germs—the Remedy

It is not generally known outside of the dental profession, that on all teeth are thin transparent films or "plaques" which dentifrices are incapable of erasing. This accounts for the obstinacy of most teeth stains, for when these films become discolored from any cause, the most persistent brushing has little if any effect on them. This also accounts for millions of teeth germs, the surfaces underneath the films providing such fruitful breeding places.

In the light of these facts, considerable importance must be attached to the discovery by a prominent dentist of a combination of substances which completely and quickly removes these discolored films. The product which he evolved, known as "Once-a-Week Tooth Polish," not only is entirely non-injurious to the enamel, but is remarkably potent in preserving teeth and preventing decay. If one will procure a package of this from the druggist and use a little on a tooth brush once a week the disagreeable stains will not return, tartar will not form, germs will not attack the enamel. This information will prove invaluable to every one desirous of owning really clean, white, beautiful teeth. Parents should see that their children use this product regularly.

LIBERTY IS SHORT LIVED FOR TWO BOYS

Liberty was short lived for Charles Coates, 14, white, and Francis Dudley 14, white, who were paroled recently from the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster.

Within the last few days the boys have been implicated in three thefts and are now locked up awaiting their return to Lancaster. Saturday night, the boys took a horse and buggy belonging to Frank Barnett from the rear of the Presbyterian church and drove it all evening finally abandoning it on Trumbull street. Sunday they went to Kil Kare Park and stole two bicycles, one belonging to a boy named Hodge and the other to a Scammahorn boy. They were arrested by local police and afterwards it was learned that they had also stolen an automobile tire from a machine owned by a man named Morgan of the Cincinnati pike and after cutting it up had sold it to a junk man.

Coates was arrested by the police here and Dudley was taken in custody at Dayton. A field officer of the Lancaster School came to Xenia Wednesday to take the two lads back to the institution. Dudley is the boy who was sent to Lancaster for implication in a number of thefts from farmers along the Cincinnati pike several months ago.

FISHERING GROCERY IS BURGLARIZED

A burglary which pointed to the work of boys, was perpetrated at the H. Fishering grocery on West Main street, Saturday or Sunday night, about $3.00 in pennies and a quantity of cigars and tobacco being taken.

The burglars made their entrance by prying a board off the cellar door. The cash was stolen from a box and the cigars and tobacco taken from a show case. The loss amounted to about $12 or $15. Mr. Fishering discovered the loss Monday morning. The matter was not reported to the police.

GUILDAY TRANSFERRED TO THE MAIN LINE

John J. Guilday, Pennsylvania road supervisor, who has had charge of the Springfield and Richmond branch of the road has been transferred to the main line, taking the place of the late Michael Moran. Mr. Guilday will have charge of the line from Xenia to Columbus. T. J. Canny, who has been an assistant supervisor, will take Mr. Guilday's place on the branch line.

Work With Others.

No matter how much enthusiasm, how much ardor, how much brilliancy we may have, if it is misdirected it cannot help, but it must hinder the work of the world. Learn to work with people, not against them. Stand always for what is right and against that which is wrong, but do not throw your energy into constant striving against theories and opinions, and even actions of others. Let your ardor and enthusiasm and your love of life be constructive. Strive to build up and not to tear down, for that is the way to help on in the scheme of living.

The engagement of Donna Anna Latitia Pecci, daughter of Count and Countess Canillo Pecci of Rome, Italy, to Cecil Charles Blunt of New York, son by a former marriage of the Countess of Montmorency of Paris, has just been announced. Mlle. Pecci is a member of one of Rome's oldest families. She is at present in Paris, visiting the Marquise de Talleyrand Perigord, who is an aunt of the Duke of Montmorency.

STRANDED AUTO TAKEN IN CHARGE BY THE SHERIFF

Abandoned for two days along the Cincinnati pike near Spring Valley, a Flanders touring car was finally taken in charge by the authorities and was pulled into this city by Sheriff Funderburg and Officer Joseph Day with the county automobile Tuesday evening.

Investigation discovered that the machine was left there by a thresherman named Lucas. When the engine died he left the machine stranded on the side of the road and instructed a Xenia mechanic to haul it in. It was there all Monday night and when it was still there Tuesday the authorities took it in charge.

FORMER ADMIRAL VON TIRPITZ WILL BE PLACED ON TRIAL

London, July 9.—Former Admiral Von Tirpitz who was responsible for Germany's war of sea frightfulness with her submarines will be among the accused German naval officers demanded for trial, the Times stated today. He will be accused of violation of international laws and customs.

It is the present intention of the government, according to the Times, to constitute military tribunals for the trial of the various defendants, settling the order of precedence by an order in council in connection with a bill providing for the ratification of the treaty. It will authoritatively state that there will be no appeal from the verdict of the international tribunal.

TWENTY THOUSAND SEE JACK DEMPSEY

Cincinnati, O., July 9.—A crowd of more than 20,000 saw Jack Dempsey, new heavyweight champion of the world, open his vaudeville career here by boxing three rounds showing the kind of blows he used to put Willard out at Toledo.

Dempsey will close his engagement here Saturday night and leave for Salt Lake City to visit his mother. He will spend a week in Salt Lake City and then leave to join a circus in the east.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, announced last night that he had received an offer for a bout between Dempsey and George Carpentier, French champion, in Paris, but will insist that Carpentier meet Dempsey in America.

"JIM" CASSIDY IS SQUARE WITH WORLD

Cleveland, O., July 9.—"Jim" Cassidy, is square with the world again.

The creditors of the former congressman, churchman and attorney who disappeared four years ago, leaving behind shortages aggregating over $20,000 yesterday received the last payment. In all including interest and other expenses James H. Cassidy paid back nearly $30,000.

Now a broker in an eastern city, it became known that Cassidy during a country wide search following his disappearance, was in Cuba.

The railroad clerk who became congressman lost everything in the financial crash of four years ago, but at the age of 50 is back again on the high road to success.

COW TESTING RECORD FOR JUNE

June has been a disappointing month for dairymen in this county. Unseasonably warm weather and the fly pest combined to make this month, usually the best one of the poorest. Fewer cows are in the quality list this month than in any since the Association started. The testing for the month was done by Mr. U. A. Warner of Valley City, Ohio.

Seven herds were not tested. The record cows, breed, production and owners are as follows:

PRESIDENT WILSON IS NOW BACK IN AMERICA AFTER EPOCH MAKING TRIP

GERMANS MUST GIVE UP RICHES

Weimar, July 8—via Berlin, July 9—The initial steps toward raising the great war indemnity imposed on Germany by the allies was taken here this afternoon when Dr. Matthias Erzberger, vice chancellor and minister of finance, introduced 10 new revenue bills designed to increase the income of the republic by 900 per cent.

The measures provide for:
Expropriation of large fortunes.
Special taxation on all fortunes increased during the war.
Taxation on the profits of real estate transactions.
Exactions on amusements.
Inheritance taxes.

A federal tax on the profits by German states from land used for military purposes during the war.
Additional taxes on sugar.
Three bills for additional taxes on tobacco, matches and playing cards.

The vice chancellor introduced the bills at the conclusion of a speech in which he outlined the financial program the new republic must adhere to if it hoped to fulfill its obligations and at the same time escape bankruptcy.

The vice chancellor urged all Germans to cease talking of revenge on Germany's enemies and to get to work.
"The word of the German republic must be honorable," he said. "We must work, else there will be no food. We must not agitate for revenge, but seek to show the justice of our case."

"I am firmly resolved to tread the path of hard economy. Beginning the first of October there will be no more items of expenditure without details. The war finance system will cease. There will be no more unproductive expenditures. It is necessary for the propertyed classes to surrender their superfluous riches."

"The government does not intend to annul the war loans. We must maintain the interest upon them. An inheritance tax and the big levy on property will be the inaugural steps. The republic's income must be increased 900 per cent and that of the states and communes 100 per cent. Bankruptcy must not seize us."

The vice chancellor was loudly applauded when he concluded.
The most revolutionary step in the government's financial program as announced by Dr. Erzberger was the flat statement that "it is necessary for the propertyed classes to surrender their superfluous riches."

COMMANDER OF R-34 AND UNITED STATES NAVAL OFFICER PHOTOGRAPHED AFTER ARRIVAL AT MINEOLA.

Major Scott and Lieut. Commander Landsdowne.

Major G. H. Scott, Royal Air Force, commander of the British dirigible R-34, and Lieutenant-Commander Zachary Landsdowne, U. S. N., photographed at Roosevelt Field Mineola, L. I. shortly after the arrival of the big airship. Lieutenant-Commander Landsdowne made the trip on the R-34 as a special observer for the United States Navy.

HISTORIC PICTURE BROUGHT HERE BY BRITISH DIRIGIBLE R-34.

President Wilson signing Peace Treaty.

This exclusive photograph was brought to the United States on the British dirigible R-34, which landed at Mineola recently after its epoch-making flight across the Atlantic. It is the first picture to arrive here of the historic event staged at Versailles. When the photograph was made at Versailles it was speeded from Paris across the channel to London and then to East Fortune, England, where the giant R-34 was all ready to start its flight over the ocean. It shows the momentous scene in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles at the signing of the Peace Treaty. President Wilson is indicated by the white arrow affixing his signature to the document, which has just been brought to him. Near him are seated Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George and General Bliss.

MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT IS A MASTERPIECE

Washington, July 9.—The issues in the German peace treaty with its accompanying constitution for the proposed League of Nations were joined today. With President Wilson back in the White House the advocates of the treaty had leadership at last. The opening gun for the ratification will be fired tomorrow. President Wilson himself will tell the senate and as many members of the house as can be accommodated in the chamber just why, in his opinion, the treaty must be ratified.

The president's message and the complete official text went to the printer today. Both will be laid on the desks of the senators tomorrow immediately after the president ends his address.

The message, those in the president's confidence who have had opportunity to read it, say, is a masterpiece. In fact, some of the president's most enthusiastic advisors characterized it today as the "greatest of his state papers."

Throughout, the message is declared to be absolutely free from criticism of its author's opponents. It is designed, it was stated today, to lay the foundation for full and free discussion of the work of the American commission to negotiate peace.

The message is something more than 5,000 words in length. Starting off with an explanation of the difficulties that were encountered in reconciling the diverse interests represented in Paris, it explains that there was evidence at all times that the peoples of the world looked to the United States for guidance. The president makes it plain that the world has depended on America to assist it in "getting back to work."

Tribute of the highest sort is paid to the great work of the American army and navy. As in his speech in Carnegie Hall, New York, the president extols the valor and dignity of the American warriors who turned the tide of battle and stemmed the onward rush of the Great German military machine, making possible its complete shattering.

The president then takes up the treaty itself in detail. He declares in open, plain terms, that everywhere in the conference it was the consensus of opinion that only through the creation of a league of nations could a stable peace be established.

FADDISTS HURTING THE DENTAL PROFESSION

Cedar Point, O., July 9.—"Faddists and fanatics in the dentistry world are making the public distrust the profession and are doing incalculable harm to patients," declared Dr. H. Edmund Friessell, dean of the dental college of the University of Pittsburgh, in an address before Psi Omega Dental fraternity in convention here.

Dr. Friessell accused the medical profession of trying to instruct the public in dentistry. "Dentistry should stand on its own legs and tell medicine to mind its own business," declared the speaker.

Four hundred dentists heard Major B. S. Rothwell of the Lake Side unit tell of the wonders wrought on oral and plastic surgery in France. The United States lead all nations in caring for soldiers' teeth.

TROUBLE FOLLOWS CLOSE ON HIS TRAIL

Cleveland, O., July 9.—Harry Holmes, indicted as one of the five robbers of the West Cleveland Bank was released late yesterday under $20,000 bond. No sooner was he free than he was arrested on a larceny charge in connection with the theft of an automobile. He put up $5,000 bail on this charge and was again free. As he was about to leave police headquarters a warrant charging robbery of property belonging to John Weber was served. He furnished $3,000 bond on this charge, finally gaining freedom under bond totalling $28,000.

PRINCE COMING TO CANADA.

London, July 9.—The Prince of Wales heir to the English throne, will sail for Canada on August 8, it was announced today by John W. Davies, American ambassador to Great Britain. The prince is expected to arrive in Washington October 1. The prince will be a guest at the White House but will not accept any invitations to private functions, it was stated.

STRIKE DEVELOPS INTO A RIOT AND TWO PERSONS ARE KILLED

Chicago, July 9.—Armed guards are patrolling the plant of the Corn Products Refining Company at Argo today where a strike of more than 1,000 employees late yesterday flared into a riot in which two persons were killed and more than a score were injured. Fighting has ceased after a battle in which more than 150 shots were fired but the situation today is considered extremely grave.

Special deputies have been sworn in to reinforce the police and volunteer guards at the plant and 100 guards are on duty today. Plans have been made to rush additional guards to the plant should there be a further outbreak. The possibility of calling out state troops also has been considered in the event of additional trouble.

John Wutack and Mike Marcinik, strikers, are the two who were killed. Six persons are known to be severely wounded and some of them may die. More than a dozen received injuries which necessitated medical attention. The strikers suffered all the casualties, none of the guards or officers being injured.

POLICE NAB SUSPECT IN BANK ROBBERY

Cleveland, O., July 9.—Police went to Elyria today to bring back a suspect in the West Cleveland Banking bank robbery arrested there last night. According to the police the latest suspect was the one Cleveland member of the gang. The police say his identity was established through bertillon photographs.

BRITISH DIRIGIBLE WILL START THURSDAY

Mineola, L. I., July 9.—After remaining aloft 150 feet throughout the night the British dirigible R-34 was hauled back to earth at daybreak today and mechanics gave her a final looking over in preparation for her start back to the British Isles tomorrow morning.

Major G. H. Scott, the airship's commander, said he hoped for an abatement before night of the unfavorable winds that caused the R-34 to postpone her departure this morning but that he was quite certain he would get away before 6 o'clock tomorrow morning regardless of the weather.

"The dirigible has now been lying in the open four days exposed to danger of being badly damaged or destroyed," he said. "This is the first time any of our big airships have remained unharmed for that length of time. The R-34 cost $2,500,000 and we must not take unnecessary risks by staying here longer than is absolutely necessary."

Only a light breeze was blowing Roosevelt field today, the weather was fine and there was little likelihood of any trouble with the airship. For a few minutes last night the R-34 got out of hand when the contraction of hydrogen gas as the night grew cool caused her stern to drop earthward. Two of the crew who were standing watch all night aboard the airship, threw out water ballast and she righted herself.

Throughout the night the R-34 continued to take on gas in preparation for tomorrow's journey.

The rioting started according to the most authentic reports, when a mob of strikers menaced an enclosed automobile in which Miss Elizabeth Horgan, a special nurse at the plant was riding. Charles Johannes, chief of the guards, came to her assistance and was felled with a brick. Other guards rushed to aid him and a shot was fired.

The mob immediately rushed the guards, using stones and sticks as weapons and the guards opened fire with their rifles. When the fire became too hot the strikers retreated leaving the victims lying in the street. The dead and wounded were cared for by Argo police and citizens.

The strike which led to the riot is declared to have arisen over refusal of the officials of the company to grant the demands of the men for a closed shop. No question of wages or improved working conditions, it is said, is involved. Officials of the company charge that Bolshevik agitators are responsible for unrest among the men.

LAWYERS OPPOSE THE NON-PARTISAN JUDICIAL BALLOT

Cedar Point, O., July 9.—There was every reason to believe today according to leading delegates, that the Ohio State Bar Association in annual convention here will pass before adjournment, resolutions urging repeal of the non-partisan judicial ballot law in Ohio.

At the opening session President Ensign N. Brown of Youngstown, bitterly attacked the law and Charles E. Blanchard, of Columbus, secretary, today said:

"In order to make themselves known, judges nominated for public office must spend in their campaigns far more money than they can afford. If their names were under a party designation, this unjust situation could be avoided. Only a man of means can afford to run for a judicial position these days."

Four hundred lawyers are attending the convention. The big address will be made by Wendell Phillips Stafford, chief justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia and a noted authority on international law, on "May the United States join the proposed League of Nations by exercise of its treaty making power?"

FIGHT PICTURES ARE BARRED IN THIS STATE

Columbus, O., July 9.—For the second time the Ohio Board of movie censors has rejected the Willard-Dempsey fight pictures. Charles G. Williams member of the board, who was not present at the meeting, voted to allow the exhibition, giving as his reason the fact that the fight was allowed in the state and that the pictures were only a reproduction of what took place.

The owners of the pictures say today that they will cut out certain objectionable features and resubmit the film to the censor board.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE GOES TO HIS OFFICE EARLY WEDNESDAY MORNING

Washington, July 9.—Although it was long after midnight when his welcome home ended, President Wilson was working at his overloaded desk in the White House soon after 8 o'clock today. He had disposed of a large amount of personal and official correspondence even before any of the force of the executive offices put in an appearance. It was expected that the president would devote practically all of the day clearing up urgent matters calling for his personal attention.

The president's greeting when he arrived at the national capital was the most spontaneous ever accorded him. Although his train arrived two hours after schedule, the crowd not only waited but was augmented until, when he arrived, there were 100,000 persons crowded in the concourse of the Union station and the station proper also was jammed. Waving flags and cheering they surged forward in a mighty demonstration and were held back only by the steel cables that had been stretched along the concourse.

The route to the White House, despite the lateness of the hour, was lined and in the vicinity of the White House was another crowd numbering at least 15,000. From the station to the White House the president was forced to acknowledge an almost uninterrupted demonstration.

"Home at last," was his remark as he alighted at the executive mansion, pausing for a moment to look at the surroundings, greatly transformed since the first week in March when he left on his second trip overseas.

By John Edwin Nevin.

Washington, July 9.—When President Wilson walked down the gang plank of the United States naval transport George Washington Tuesday afternoon, he ended a trip marked by more precedent breaking than ever before in the history of the nation which has characterized the administration of its chief executive.

The president had not alone visited Europe, but he personally participated in the drafting of the treaty of peace which had ended the war with Germany. That document he brought back with him and will present it to the senate within 48 hours.

Whether the document is a satisfactory one to the congress; to the senate, which must approve it by a two-thirds vote of its membership and to the people of the United States generally is something yet to be determined. But it can be stated officially that the president himself is satisfied. He does not regard the treaty as a perfect document. But he does believe that it marks a long step forward and that it will, when its contents are explained and analyzed, receive the approval of the people.

The president, it is known, believes that the treaty follows even more closely than he had anticipated when the diverse interests of the nations interested are considered, the 14 points of peace outlined by him in his original peace message to congress. Persons close to the president today declared that the treaty accomplished

the following facts:

First, compels Germany to pay for the acts of her folly in initiating the war to the utmost of her ability, while at the same time preventing her from bankruptcy that inevitably would have followed had she been forced as Great Britain and France originally intended, to assume the entire cost of the war.

Second, furnishes a medium to avoid future wars through the creation of the much controverted League of Nations.

Third, restores to France Alsace-Lorraine, wrested from her by the Prussian empire in 1871.

Fourth, liberates peoples who "had heretofore only dreamed of liberty," in the persons of the new republics created in Europe, including Poland, Czechoslovakia, etc.

In addition to the treaty with Germany, the president will submit to the senate a treaty arranged between France, Great Britain and the United States, whereby the two latter powers are to prepare should Germany again threaten France to come to the latter's assistance without waiting for action by the League of Nations. The treaty was agreed to as the result of the insistence of Premier Clemenceau of France, but there is grave doubt expressed in many American quarters whether it will appeal to the people of the United States. There is a general feeling among the Americans in Europe that this undertaking will never be ratified by congress.

FRENCH TROOPS CLASH AT FIUME WITH ITALIANS

Geneva, July 9.—Twenty-one French officers and men have been killed and about as many wounded in the clashes between French and Italian troops at Fiume. Reports received here say that the trouble is continuing.

STILL CHECKING UP THE FIGHT RECEIPTS

Toledo, Ohio, July 9.—Accountants and representatives of the internal revenue department were still checking away today at the gate receipts trotted out in responding to an of the big Willard-Dempsey go on alarm today.

July 4, but expected to complete their work by evening. They said, however, that their official figures would not differ materially from the unofficial figures given out by Tex Rickard before he departed for the east. The promoter said approximately 21,000 people had paid $452,000 to see the fight.

Rickard said the $10 sections proved a huge disappointment but 5,000 of the 40,000 capacity being sold. The high priced tickets, however were all disposed of.

$75,000 DAMAGE DONE.

Cleveland, O., July 9.—An immense amount of brass fixtures was destroyed today when fire swept the plant of the Crescent Brass Manufacturing company here, causing damage estimated at $75,000.

Edward Lander, a fireman, was badly crushed and six other employees of the fire department injured when hook and ladder truck No. 12 overturned at West 68th street and Deering avenue in responding to an alarm today.

Rural Router Wants Fellow Sufferers to Know About Nerv-Worth's "Wonderful" Merits.

This entirely new statement is one of the most striking tributes ever paid to a medicine. Observe that Nerv-Worth did for him what several doctors found it impossible to do: Dar Sirs—I feel it my duty to speak a word in behalf of your wonderful medicine (Nerv-Worth). I have suffered with a bad stomach trouble for two or three years. Could eat nothing without suffering with palpitation of the heart smothering—and nerves in a terrible shape. I had tried five or six different doctors, but could get no relief whatever. Seeing testimonials for Nerv-Worth in a paper I decided to try a bottle. I felt like a new man after the first bottle. I can truthfully recommend Nerv-Worth for a family medicine. I would not be without it in my house.

Very truly yours,

GRAND MASTER OF OHIO MASONS TO BE XENIA VISITOR

Isaac Kinsey, Grand Master of Ohio Masons in company with Harry Allen, Grand Marshall of the Ohio Lodge, will arrive in Xenia at 10:45 o'clock Thursday morning on his tour of inspection and all local Masons are invited to be at the Lodge Rooms to meet him at that time.

The two are making a two day trip expecting to visit twenty lodges in this section of the state. Mr. Kinsey is one of the country's biggest Masons and the local lodge feels honored in being able to entertain the distinguished visitor. His record in the Masons is an excellent one and he has served in many offices for the organization, being now a 33rd degree Honorary Member of the Supreme Council Northern Masonic Jurisdiction in Boston.

His visit here will hardly extend over a half hour as he hopes to make other lodges in this section, but it is expected that he will be greeted here by a number of Masons.

SPRINGFIELD WHITE SOX NOSES OUT IN TEN INNING GAME

The Springfield White Sox, who split fifty-fifty in a two game series with the Xenia Reserves here this season, were nosed out in the tenth frame of an extra inning contest with the Wilmington Clintons Sunday, the score being 7-6.

"Red" Toews, who handled the mask and pad for the locals during the early part of the season, was behind the batters for the Home City crowd, greatly strengthening the line-up, as "Red" is no piker at the backstopping position.

The Wilmington outfit has been playing good ball since it was gotten under way some few Sundays ago. Hieronimus, who has a permanent lease on the pitcher's mound around the Quaker City, is again in the box this season, and although he was touched up pretty lively by the visitors Sunday, his teammates were not slow with the dash themselves, and they kept Duffy's gardeners "on the bit" most of the time.

With the Clintons now well organized and offering a good brand of the national pastime, it would be entirely congenial with the local fans if Manager Foley should arrange a game between the Cincinnati avenue performers and the Clinton county athletes.

Boss Foley has already booked the Washington Athletics, another old local rival, who is scheduled to do battle at the local yard soon and it would do the fans good if the old baseball triangle of Washington, Wilmington and Xenia could be revived.

Next Sunday Foley's followers will carry on against the Springfield All Stars, an outfit which comprises the best baseball material in the Home City, being made up of the cream of the Athletics and the White Sox. A return of a Springfield club will be welcomed if Erwin of the White Sox, can be squeezed out of the line up.

It used to be in the good old days that a long dry spell was generally followed by a fire or several fires.

But now history is belying its previous records, for while everything has been as dry as a chip since the saloons went out on May 26, there has not been a fire since a month ago last Wednesday, which shows that there is something wrong with this kind of dry spell.

Up at the Fire department house, the daily checker tournament is enjoying uninterrupted existence. The fire laddies who were wont to stop just as they were about to move into the king row, and make a dive for the chugging fire truck or to buckle up harness, have not suffered a break in the harmony of their existence for well over a month, according to their own statements.

"I have known it to go six weeks without a call," said Driver Mahanna, of the motor truck Wednesday. If the present quiet spell holds forth a little while longer it bids fair to smash a record for continued absence of firecalls.

This five weeks fire famine was broken at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, when the Fire Department answered a call to the home of Henry Schwab on Center street.

Fire, supposed to have originated from a defective flue, destroyed the summer kitchen at the Schwab home. Firemen fought the blaze with both water and chemicals and saved the house from being consumed in the conflagration. The fire was the first in five weeks, and came just at a time when firemen were congratulating themselves on the lack of calls recently.

"JEWELRY" OF MASAI WOMEN

Telegraph Wire Considered Choleé Personal Adornment by Females of British East African Tribes.

Of all Africa's many tribes, none is more distinctive than the Masai, that warlike race of British East Africa, whose women are regarded as the best looking of all negroes. They are slender, well formed, and lack the abnormal hips so characteristic of many other natives. Pride in personal adornment is shown by ornaments of a remarkable nature, telegraph wire being coiled about their arms and limbs in spiral fashion.

So awkward is this remarkable jewelry that the wearer cannot walk properly, nor can she sit down nor rise like other human beings. Round her arms she has wire coiled both above and below her elbows, while still more wire is coiled round her neck horizontally, till the head seems to sit on an inverted iron salver. Put on at an early age, these ornaments must remain unless they are sawed off. As a result of this compression the limbs remain like mere stumps, the wire frequently becoming embedded into the flesh. Besides this iron wire, often weighing 30 pounds or more, great quantities of beads and iron chains are hung in various ways round the neck.

During the period of engagement the girl wears round her head a band covered with cowries from which hang a number of strings forming a bridal veil. For the first time she dons real clothes, consisting of an apron in front, suspended from the shoulders behind. The hairs of the eyebrow are pulled out to further enhance her beauty.

DO YOU THINK IN PICTURES?

According to Men Who Have Studied the Subject, Most of Us Unconsciously Have That Habit.

A writer says: "A good many men and a larger number of women and children think in pictures without knowing it. If some one speaks of a tree, an oak or an elm, or a pine—do you see a composite tree of your own design, or a particular tree you know, perhaps, in childhood? Do you see it bare or in full leaf? If you are one of those who think in pictures, you will find that you always see the same picture for the same words." Prof. Francis Galton, F. R. S., is the exponent of this belief, and after all, is it not merely a return to the very origin of our written language, the hieroglyphs of Egypt? In that primitive time it is possible that a word brought so clearly to mind a mental vision of an object or an action that it could easily be summarized into an ideograph. In our more complex life we have, of course, lost sight of the facts and no longer realize that the word "tree" means to us a well-defined object probably fixed in the brain by one of the minute lesions—or its cleatix—which science tells us are the sources of memory.

We unconsciously assemble these various memories and unconsciously form of them pictures which, if we are suddenly brought to ourselves, we might still retain on the mind's retina for a time, just as we retain dream images vividly on suddenly awakening.

Early Protest Against Tipping.

The word "tip" is said to be derived from the initial letters of the phrase "To Insure Promptness," but as "tips" usually follow, instead of preceding, service, they insure nothing, and as a consequence anti-tipping crusades are constantly being threatened. But protests against tipping are by no means of modern growth. George I, complained about it when he first came to the throne and England. "This is a strange country," he declared. "The first morning after my arrival at St. James' I looked out of the window and saw a park with walks and a canal, which I was told were mine. The next day Lord Chetwynd, the ranger of my park, sent me a fine brace of carp out of my canal, and I was told I must give 5 guineas to Lord Chetwynd's servant for bringing me my own carp out of my own canal in my own park."

Putting It Plainly.
Among the many good stories contained in the private papers of Admiral Sir William Hotham, is one about Gen. O'Hara, who, as governor of Gibraltar, discovered that an officer who had lately joined had come on parade with an umbrella.

The wind that day was easterly, and the general perhaps was unduly affected by this circumstance, but in very unmeasured terms he ordered the delinquent to throw away the offending implement; and after adding other comments, concluded thus: "And pray, sir, in future understand that you are not to appear upon this parade with an umbrella—no, not if it is raining pikes with the sharp points downwards!"—London Tit-Bits.

Frost Forests.
One beautiful use his window had, one glorious use, one enchantment. In the depth of winter sometimes of mornings when he got out of bed and went to open the shutter, on the windowpanes would be a forest of glittering trees. The first time he beheld such a forest, he stood before it spellbound; wondering whether there were silvery birds singing far off amid the silvery boughs, and what wild creatures crouched in the tall, stiff frost-grass. From the ice-forests on the windowpanes his thoughts always returned to the green summer forest on the distant horizon.—James Lane Allen, in "The Kentucky Warbler."

CENTENARY CELEBRATION COLUMBUS

(OHIO)

Remember this great Centenary Celebration closes its gates on SUNDAY, JULY 13th.

Described by William C. Freeman, Associated with Paul Block, Inc., New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston.

Thousands of requests have come to the Committee in Charge to extend for another week or two the Centenary Celebration.

BUT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DO SO.

THE CLOSING DATE—SUNDAY, JULY 13—MUST STAND AS ORIGINALLY PLANNED.

And this is why this greatest Exposition of modern times must close its doors on Sunday, July 13: Its success—and it is a remarkable success, as all concede—has depended on the self-sacrificing efforts of many hundreds of volunteer workers who cannot possibly remain at their posts longer than Sunday, July 13th.

A few might remain, without serious detriment to their personal affairs, but a BIG ENGINE, such as that which has furnished the power for this Centenary Celebration Columbus, cannot run smoothly with a great many of the parts inactive.

EVERY ONE of the splendidly zealous and intelligent group of volunteer workers is necessary to the smooth running of the Exposition—

Therefore, with so many hundreds unable to continue, the BIG ENGINE of which they are essential parts, must shut off its power Sunday, July 13th.

AND SO, WITH MANY REGRETS, AND WITH DEEP APPRECIATION OF THE MAGNIFICENT TRIBUTE PAID THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION BY THE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE THAT HAVE SEEN IT, THE COMMITTEE BOWS TO THE INEVITABLE AND MUST CLOSE THE GATES SUNDAY, JULY 13.

It is a significant thing that on several of the days since the Centenary Celebration started—Friday June 20th—the attendance has been larger than was the attendance at that much-heralded prize fight which took place at Toledo last Friday.

WHICH SHOWS THAT—the millions—the heart and conscience and real manhood and womanhood of the country—stand back of and loyally support the big things done in the world to make it better—such big things, for instance, as find expression in the more than 16,000 individual exhibits displayed at the Centenary Celebration, State Fair Grounds, Columbus.

Each one of these exhibits REPRESENTS A TRIUMPH for the grand work done by thousands of self-sacrificing men and women in teaching their brothers and sisters in all parts of the world how to benefit themselves by adopting Christian standards of living and applying themselves to helpful, constructive industry.

Surely you will wish to see these wonderful exhibits at the Centenary Celebration before the gates are closed Sunday evening, July 13th. Furthermore, I am sure you will want to feel the same thrill that so many visitors have told me they have felt. They tell me—

"THIS CENTENARY CELEBRATION HAS STIRRED IN US THE FINEST KIND OF EMOTIONS. AND YET WE HAVE HAD A JOILY GOOD TIME IN SEEING THE WONDERFUL THINGS DISPLAYED AND HEARING SO MUCH INSPIRING MUSIC."

I think an Exposition that has the power to stir in us our best emotions while at the same time delightfully entertaining us, is about the highest type of Exposition, don't you think so?

Remember, the Centenary Celebration continues only four more days after today. Don't let it close its gates without your seeing it—no matter how far you have to travel or how much time it takes, or how much money it costs.

The Exposition itself charges an entrance fee of only 50 cents for all day long, and an extra fee of 50 cents if you wish to see the great pageant in the Coliseum.

NEW LITERARY CLUB OR- GANIZED AT SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOME.

For forty years that indefatigable promoter, "Good Intention," had been making a number of the good matrons and teachers at our Soldiers' Orphans' Home anxious for the promotion of a literary society among themselves. But you know the fiction about many good intentions and purposes, that they lie buried in the churchyard. Good intentions are very mortal and perishable things, and so it proved for years with the hope for a Literary Society among the Home ladies.

But at last, in this good year 1919, the long hoped for Literary Society has not only been born, but comes forth a stalwart with teeth, needing no nursing bottle. In fact it has all the ear-marks of success right from its start.

Some of these good ladies of the Home have laid on this editor's desk the beautiful brochure calendar for the year 1919-1920 of their new "Searchlight Club," just organized. We compliment them for the fact that from its first page to the last this calendar is perfection in the matter of contents and arrangement. In every phase the calendar is ala-mode up to snuff. Whoever superintended its construction did so with ability and taste.

The ladies who have conceived and organized the "Searchlight Club" are entitled to much credit for what they have accomplished. It has taken work, but they have their reward in the knowledge that the Club will be a splendid adjunct to the work of the Home. We do not know of any other new departure for which we could say a kinder word.

The calendar contains the dates of monthly meetings from September 9, 1919, to August 10, 1920, naming participants. There are 31 members named. The officers for the first year are: President, Mrs. Martha Cavanaugh; Vice President, Miss Teclia Hess; Secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Lewis; Treasurer, Miss Harriet Tedrick.

The lyric headings to each month are very beautiful and appropriate.

Introductory to the calendar is a "Collect for Club Women" so full of high ideals that we can close this notice in no better way than to give it, as follows:

A COLLECT FOR CLUB WOMEN.

"Keep us, O God, from pettiness, let us be large in thought, in word, in deed."

Let us be done with fault finding and leave off self seeking.

May we put away pretense and meet each other face to face without self pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment and always generous.

Let us take time for all things: make us grow calm, serene and gentle. Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straight forward and unafraid.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences, that in the big things of life we are as one.

And may we strive to teach and to know the great, common woman's heart of us all.

And let us not forget to be kind.

PUTTING THE CULPRITS.

Civilization has now settled accounts with the German nation. It remains to settle with the individual criminals most responsible for the great calamity.

The treaty signed by Germany gives the Allies a legal right to claim the persons of the former Kaiser and those who share with him the guilt of starting the war and waging it in so barbarous a fashion. The claim should be pressed at once. Acquiescence on Germany's part will be a test of good faith, showing whether the Germans intend to abide by the treaty they have signed. If they refuse to yield the guilty men, in spite of their pledge, the Allies should proceed to take them.

The moral effect will be all the greater if Wilhelm and his brutal satellites are summoned to the judgment bar while the war and its fruits are still fresh in men's minds. Their trial will be the climax of the impressive drama of German retribution. It will fix clearly in the consciousness of all the world the facts of the war and the lessons learned from it. And if the prisoners are delivered over to a fitting punishment, it will be a lesson forever to rulers, statesmen, generals and admirals.

The German nation is learning that a people cannot sin without paying in full. It remains for the Germans to learn that men "clothed with a little brief authority" must likewise suffer punishment for crimes committed in the name of the nation—that a state is not superior to the laws of God and men, and that its representatives may be called to account for public acts as for private acts.

The war would have been won in vain if the German people, who are now known to have been equally guilty with their rulers, had not been made to suffer for a generation, not in vengeance but in partial recompense and in the working out of their own salvation. It will have been won in vain if one jot of possible and deserved punishment fails to fall upon the heads of the Prussians who have bathed the world in blood and brought mourning and poverty to many hundred millions of unoffending people.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS

BY JANE PHELPS.

ROSE DOUBTS SANDRA'S LOVE FOR EVERETT.

CHAPTER VIII.

I wish I could describe understandingly the emotions I felt in those weeks preceding my wedding. One day I was all eagerness to try that new life that was to be mine, the next all fear, and unwillingness. I tried to think of Everett as all a lover should be, as my idea of what one should be (had been) before I met him. But I often felt depressed, gray and overcast like some of the days just passed. The sweet urge of spring was gone; that time when I felt the buoyancy of youth, and I sometimes felt the tears beneath my lids, as I thought of the leaves and buds having lived their short lives and fallen, and wished like mother that Everett had been content to wait until spring had come again.

I never had liked the fall of the year. In a way it always saddened me. It seemed to me that when the wind sighed in the tree tops, or when it whistled mournfully through the shrubs, that it was moaning with regret because of the coming death of all about. But never had I given voice to this feeling, I feared no one would understand.

And much of the time I was so excited over my pretty clothes, my gifts, the linen shower the girls gave for me, that I had not time for sad thoughts, or to worry about the future.

Sometimes I wondered in a vague sort of way just WHY Everett Graham had asked me to marry him. How he had come to look at me at all in the light of a wife. But like others I had heard that "love goes where it is sent," and his was probably sent to me. When I said so to Rose, she replied in a real sharp way:

"I wish it had been sent to some one else."

Rose couldn't be reconciled to me marrying Everett. Not that she disliked him, she said often:

"He is a charming man, Sandra. But you can't be happy just because a man has nice manners, and knows how to wear his clothes. A girl has got to have something besides that. I am no older than you are, Sandra, but I'd be frightened to death to marry a man unless I just felt I couldn't live another minute without him. You don't love Mr. Graham like that, do you?"

"No—I guess—I could—live—without him," I said slowly trying to analyze my feelings as I answered. "But Rose, I have read stories where people didn't care so terribly much, and then love came in a blinding flash—those are just the very words 'a blinding flash.' Perhaps that is the way it will come to me, if I don't love Everett enough now."

"Blinding flash, nothing. Maybe you DO love him all you can, Sandra. Maybe you aren't the kind that cares very much about love." Rose was sentimental, yet of the two I was far more alive to all that was emotional than she was.

I made up my mind that just as soon as we were married I should ask Everett about a lot of things. I wouldn't dare before, of course. But he must first of all tell me all about his first wife, and tell me he loved me far better than ever he had loved her. That was the most important thing of all. Then he must tell me all about his women friends, those he had called upon since he had been a widower, and if he had been in love with any of them, and a dozen other things I wanted desperately to know. Then I would write Rose and tell her how mistaken she had been, and how foolish she

been, and show her how foolish she was to think Everett was too old to make me happy.

My faith that all his answers would set me at ease shows the little knowledge of what the replies to such questions as I meant to ask might mean to me—if they were honestly answered.

There was one thing about me I was SURE Everett liked, that was my name. He had told me so often, and everything he sent me was marked simply, "Sandra." No initials or monograms. He had told me that an unusual name always attracted him. Mine surely was unusual, so of course he was pleased with it.

Had I known that even the liking he had for unusual names was to be a distressing factor in my life, I should not have been so proud that mother had called me Sandra.

Making Friends.

If one would have friends she must prove a friend. We cannot play a grouch part and favorably impress others around us. Whatever Fate has sent us or denied us in the way of good looks doesn't matter. If we would be happy and help some one to feel likewise, we must put self in the background occasionally and show to that "some one" that we want to be her friend. — New York Evening Telegram.

"Shine!"

The sound seems to emanate from a high column composed of cartons of "Honest Scrap" and "Prince Albert" which was just then moving forward on short legs and with unseen power from the rear door of the Rufus Mullen barber shop.

At the tobacco counter in the front of the shop, the pile of tobacco cartons halted in its forward movement, and then settled to the tiled floor, the hidden object of its progress and undoubtedly the owner of the voice, appearing with a broad grin from behind it.

Goodin, for it was indeed he, rid himself of a pale whistle as he moped his forehead and made for the marble topped shining stand which is his royal throne. Those who could distinguish by the depth of his dimples knew him to be Raymond Goodin, brother of Ralph Goodin, although the uninitiated could not tell the two apart. For the Goodin brothers, colored lads, are as like as two shoe buttons and as inseparable as the famous Siamese twins. Ralph, however, polishes automobiles instead of shoes and plies his trade at the Xenia Garage Company, where he can be found any time of day except meal time.

No twins ever looked more alike than the Goodin brothers, despite the fact that Raymond, by his own confession is fifteen minutes older than his brother. But the fact that the one is mirrored in the other or that Ralph Mullen doesn't know whether it is Ralph or Raymond that is working for him is not the bright feature of the Goodin twins, which seems destined to make them famous some day.

For the twins can sing. No more melodious notes were ever given in the throat of a Noble Sissle than find themselves floating from these musical dittos. Anything from sacred music to jazz is in their line, although it must be said that their interpretation of the latter form of musical entertainment leaves nothing to be longed for.

The silver tones from these two lads can be heard rising in harmony in a barber shop tenor or a garage baritone anytime of the sun-up period. Raymond, who beats a tattoo on your kickers at the barber shop is a tenor in every sense of the word, with a saxophone sob in his larynx that will knock you off your feet. Ralph is a baritone by nature or a base by request and his voice is attuned to harmonize with his brother.

Without the necessity of spreading any salve it is believed by many, that these two lads could rattle the chandeliers in a real good singing act in the big time. Just twenty years old, they are evidently fearful of the big world and the bright footlights, and only long for a chance in a local theater. Friends vouch for the assertion that they could make good.

Noble Sissle, who sang for a month in the Bijou picture theater several years ago, is now one of the most popular colored singers on the staff of the Pathe Phonograph company and his records can be bought at any of the dealers.

The prophets have it that there is a great future in store for the Goodin brothers and maybe they will be "listening to their masters' voice" some day.

Right now barbershop harmony has been raised to a higher quality level by their presence here anyway.

What He Wanted.

Bobby had been given three cents to spend as he and his younger brother saw fit. Having heard much garden talk, and being attracted by a display of garden seeds, he came home with three packages of vegetable seeds, eager to get them planted at once. Hearing something about the proposed planting of some flower seeds, he insisted on planting his, saying to his mother as a final argument: "Mother, we don't want flower seeds; we want eating seeds."

Deep Diving.

The greatest depth ever reached by a diver is said to be 204 feet. The greatest depth at which useful work has been done is 182 feet. Sponge and pearl divers, working without armor, frequently descend to depths of about 150 feet.

NUXATED IRON A DRIVING FORCE BEHIND KEEN SUCCESSFUL MEN AND WOMEN

When you think of the successful men and women you know—people who are doing things worth while—you will find that they possess force, vim and energy—the kind that simply brim over when the blood is filled with iron. Nuxated Iron by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed force and energy into the whole system. Three million people use it annually as a tonic, strength and blood-builder.

MAKE THIS TEST

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired; next take two five grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

The "Harmony Germ"
By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

The young lawyer, Paul Drury, was amazed as he saw old Dr. Eben Marston take the arm of Ben Adams, the confirmed inebriate of the town, and lead him into the nearest bar room.

Coming out of the place the retired physician observed Nat Gookins, a lad of eleven, puffing away at a cigarette, sheltered by an ash box in an alley. Dr. Marston blandly advanced toward the callow youth, who dropped the cigarette with a sheepish grin, and deliberately handed him a full grown cigar.

Paul was not only astounded, but curious. Was the aged physician, whose morals and habits were of the highest order, taking leave of his senses? He kept closely on his trail. The doctor was halted by Andrew Reed, a shivering, nerve-racked dope fiend. He made a pathetic appeal to the doctor. The latter conversed with him earnestly. Then he took out his medicine case and handed the sufferer a small phial.

"Well! what in the world does all this mean?" marveled Paul.

If he had seen the aged physician before he left home carefully prepare several small capsules, one of which he had inserted in a slit in the cigar, and two others, which he had dropped in turn into the phial he had given Andrew Reed and into the stimulant he had bought for Ben Adams, he would have been still further mystified. He and Dr. Marston were close friends and later in the day he dropped into his office.

"Doctor," he said, "I am no spy, but I saw you do some strange things today."

"Yes? I observed that you were watching me," nodded the doctor imperturbably.

"You did? Then you can fancy how I was puzzled and—yes, actually shocked. What were you up to, anyhow? Helping that poor sot go further down the ladder? Encouraging that lad to smoke? Keeping up the misery of that poor wreck, Reed?"

"Curing them?"

"Saving them, I should have said. Drury, you are a friend I can trust and I am going to impart to you something absolutely confidential. Those three subjects you saw me operate on today are experiments for my harmony germ system."

"Harmony germ!" repeated Paul vaguely. "And what may that be?"

"Listen—while I was on my trip around the world, at a choice little island in the southern Pacific I discovered an earthly paradise. Its inhabitants were mild, friendly people, all kindness and gentleness. Its fruits and flowers were exquisite. The people ate no meat. Even the birds and animals of that select spot subsisted entirely on fruits, vegetables and grain. I studied it all out. I made a great discovery. I located the harmony germ—that is, a substance pervading all the flora and fauna of that lovely ocean-bound Eden, which seemed to make everything in nature harmonious. It may not be precisely a germ, but it is vitally a substance which puts good where there has been bad. I have determined to experiment with it. You have seen three subjects operated on. Wait a month and then decide if there is any basis to my erratic idea."

If Paul had known the truth he would have learned that Adams had fallen and broken a limb the very day Dr. Marston had administered his harmony germ. One lesson had been a warning to him and he had reformed.

Likewise, Ned was smoking the doctor's cigar in the woodshed when his father called him. He had thrown the lighted weed among some shavings. The shed burned down. Ned was scared into repentance and became a better boy.

Now all this said Paul thinking seriously. There was that upon his mind which impelled him to seek Dr. Marston one day.

"Doctor," he said, "it's a wonder what that harmony germ has done for your subjects. Maybe you can help me."

"How is that, Drury?" propounded Dr. Marston.

"Well, I have been courting Edna Bell for nearly a year. I know that she likes me, but whenever I try to talk of marrying she puts me off. Give me some of your harmony germ, I'll mix it in with a box of candy and await results."

"All right," acquiesced Dr. Marston accommodatingly.

A month to a day after that Paul sat beside the fair Edna, a being possessed of joy incredible, for she was his promised bride.

"Paul," she said, "it was that box of candy that urged me to accept you."

"Ha!" whispered Paul to himself, "the harmony germ!"

"I always loved you, but wanted time to decide surely as to the future. I decided that candy with Mabel Hurst. While we were dispatching it she made the remark that she was going to set her cap for you. The thought of losing you was something terrible, so—"

"The harmony germ did it!" persisted Dr. Marston later exultingly, despite Paul's argument to the contrary.

THAT DEAR LITTLE OLD TRUNDLE BED

They sing of borrowed pelouses and other means of fun, while I uphold my mattress, for joy when work is done. Of all the things amusing, when all is done and said, there's not a thing that can beat that old four poster bed. No matter what the time is, at which you reach the hay, you'll sure be glad you hit it, in the middle of the day. We are a devilish race and burn the midnight oil, and repent upon the morrow, while we attempt to toil. Each day brings forth a promise, to go to bed real soon, and each succeeding night sees neglect of this our boon. And thus through all of this life, we reckon up too late, and wrangle on our folly and blame it all on fate. We forget all the pleasures, that do this life infest, and rule the art of living, a failure at its best. But while we have this grouch, let's cogitate for once, and in our little trundle, our tired form ensconce.

You Can't Cure Rheumatism With Liniments and Lotions

If you are afflicted with Rheumatism, why waste time with liniments, lotions and other local applications that never did cure Rheumatism, and never will?

Do not try to rub the pain away, for you will never succeed. Try the sensible plan of finding the cause of the pain. Remove the cause, and there can be no pain. You will never be rid of Rheumatism until you cleanse your blood of the germs that cause the disease. S. S. S. has no equal as a blood purifier, scores of sufferers say that it has cleansed their blood of Rheumatism, and removed all trace of the disease from their system.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your drug store and get on the right treatment to-day. If you want special medical advice, address Medical Director, 49 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Ex-Crown Prince at Wieringer, Holland.

He stated a few days ago that he would commit suicide rather than submit to trial by the allies. "I will be the sole judge of whether I live or die," he declared. He and the other old leaders of the German party seem to think that they should be immune from trial by a court of justice. Justice is something that never ooth ered them before, but now they are afraid of it.

COFFEE GOING UP SAY DEALERS; WILL COST 75 CENTS LB.

Coffee, while not prohibited is going to cost so much in a few days that the average consumer will think twice before buying according to announcements made by wholesale dealers.

With Germany's signing of the treaty of peace, coffee has started up, because foreign markets which have not been buying during the war, are bidding for the berry.

It is now selling at 50 to 60 cents a pound, but according to the marketmen, the cheapest grade will be selling for 75 cents within a few weeks and the better grades will sell for 85 cents to a dollar.

When coffee will reach the summit of its climb in price merchants fail to see, but it will not be until after the foreign markets are supplied, they say. Another reason for the raise in coffee prices is because the United States has not the shipping facilities to handle the coffee in large quantities.

FRED HARTMAN IN TROUBLE AT TROY

Fred Hartman, former Xenia barber, and boxing promoter was arrested in Troy Sunday with Mrs. Mildred Schroeder, on a statutory charge, filed by the woman's husband, Charles Schroeder of Hamilton. Hartman left here some time ago, and has been living in Hamilton, his former home. A news dispatch from Troy says:

The couple arrived in this city about two weeks ago, Hartman securing a position as a barber. At that time he is said to have secured a room for himself and wife, as he represented the woman companion to be The real husband suddenly appeared in Troy Sunday, and sought the aid of the police in locating his wife. Hartman is well known among the sporting fraternity of Hamilton where he managed a number of boxing bouts. The man and woman are being held in the county jail to await their hearing.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous,
Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits overtime. Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.
By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses. Timidness, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support. There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but as men now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-Ieren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime—and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-Ieren is without doubt the greatest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. Sayre & Hemphill and all other druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Does a woman precede a man when going into a theater or cafe?" asked James.
"The woman always precedes the man unless it is necessary for the man to find a place for her or show her the way. When there is an usher to conduct people to their seats, the woman follows him immediately and the man walks behind her," replied his father.

MYSTERIOUS MADEMOISELLE M., CONCEDED SPORTIEST DRESSED WOMAN IN PARIS.

Fashionable women of Paris are all a-flutter over the sport costumes being worn by a mysterious mademoiselle who is a daily visitor to the famous Longchamps racecourse, Mademoiselle M., as she is generally known is conceded to be the most sportily-dressed woman in Paris, and therefore in France. She is shown here wearing a stylish walking suit of a rather masculine cut. Her bonnet is fastened much on the style of a jockey cap. The big initial M., embroidered on her handbags, are the means of her identification.

CANDIDATES FOR CITY COMMISSION TO BE CONSIDERED

A meeting of the Citizens Committee of One Hundred will be held Thursday evening at 8:30 p. m., at the rooms of the Business Men's Association to consider the question of candidates for the City Commission. Two commissioners are to be elected this fall and the time for filing petitions expires next Saturday, so action must be taken at once if at all.
During the next two years some very important matters will come up before the Commission and all friends of the new form of city government will need to continue their active interest.
The call is being sent out on postal cards to those who joined the committee and paid their dues but the object of the meeting is the welfare of Xenia and anyone who is interested in having a well governed city is invited to be present.
To those who have forgotten it may be well to explain how the Citizens Committee was formed. It is not a hand picked affair, but is composed of men who responded to the call for a general meeting when the new form of government was first considered. Every person in the city was invited and those who paid $2 dues to defray expenses of the committee are on record as committee members. Every citizen is welcome to become a member of the committee and every one interested in the welfare of the city is invited to the meeting Thursday evening.

SUPT. ELTON SENDS FOR HOME PUPIL

Elva Miller, O. S. and S. O. Home pupil who was spending her vacation at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. J. Yerian in Columbus, where a tragedy occurred Monday night, when her brother-in-law committed suicide after believing he killed his wife, will be returned to the Home immediately. Superintendent J. P. Elton sent transportation for the girl back to Xenia, to the juvenile court in Columbus today. Home authorities had investigated the Yerian home before the girl was permitted to go there to spend her vacation, and a favorable report had been given to them.

It is not generally known outside of the dental profession, that on all teeth are thin transparent films or "plaques" which dentifrices are incapable of erasing. This accounts for the continuance of most teeth stains, for when these films become discolored from any cause, the most persistent brushing has little if any effect on them. This also accounts for millions of teeth germs, the surfaces underneath the films providing such fruitful breeding places.
In the light of these facts, considerable importance must be attached to the discovery by a prominent dentist of a combination of substances which completely and quickly removes these discolored films. The product which he evolved, known as "Once-a-Week Tooth Polish," not only is entirely non-injurious to the enamel, but is remarkably potent in preserving teeth and preventing decay. If one will procure a package of this from the druggist and use a little on a tooth brush once a week the disagreeable stains will not return, tartar will not form, germs will not attack the enamel. LIBERTY IS SHORT LIVED FOR TWO BOYS

Liberty was short lived for Charles Coates, 14, white, and Francis Dudley 14, white, who were paroled recently from the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster.
Within the last few days the boys have been implicated in three thefts and are now locked up awaiting their return to Lancaster. Saturday night, the boys took a horse and buggy belonging to Frank Barnet from the rear of the Presbyterian church and drove it all evening finally abandoning it on Trumbull street. Sunday they went to Kil Kare Park and stole two bicycles, one belonging to a boy named Hodge and the other to a Scammahorn boy. They were arrested by local police and afterwards it was learned that they had also stolen an automobile tire from a machine owned by a man named Morgan of the Cincinnati pike and after cutting it up had sold it to a junk man.
Coates was arrested by the police here and Dudley was taken in custody at Dayton. A field officer of the Lancaster School came to Xenia Wednesday to take the two lads back to the institution. Dudley is the boy who was sent to Lancaster for implication in a number of thefts from farmers along the Cincinnati pike several months ago.

Work With Others.
No matter how much enthusiasm, how much ardor, how much brilliancy we may have, if it is misdirected it cannot help, but it must hinder the work of the world. Learn to work with people, not against them. Stand always for what is right and against that which is wrong, but do not throw your energy into constant striving against theories and opinions, and even actions of others. Let your ardor and enthusiasm and your love of life be constructive. Strive to build up and not to tear down, for that is the way to help on in the scheme of living.

COW TESTING RECORD FOR JUNE

June has been a disappointing month for dairymen in this county. Unseasonably warm weather and the fly pest combined to make this month, usually the best one of the poorest. Fewer cows are in the quality list than in any since the Association started. The testing for the month was done by Mr. U. A. Warner of Valley City, Ohio. Seven herds were not tested. The record cows, breed, production and owners are as follows:
